GRAPE VARIETIES Pinot noir

TERROIR

Brown calcareous soils, fine gravel, silty-clay division, reddish rubble from cryoclastic products originating from white oolite, associated with chalky limestone blocks called “Sheep’s head” developed by weathering. These boulders lay on compact pink limestone, called Premeaux with levels of chert.

WINE CHARACTER

The freshness and the purity of fruit combine with a fine structure, tender and supple. Easily approachable in its youth, it surprises by its capacity to assert its personality during ageing.
